About Geoff Lamb

Geoff: I have been practicing as a psychotherapist for over 30 years and was the Director of Inter-Psyche (The only counselling training organisation based within the NHS) from 2005 to 2017. In addition to my private practices in London and West Sussex, I have extensive group-work experience in Europe. I am co-founder of the UK Centre for Psychosexual Therapy and a professional member of the Association of Somatic and Integrative Sexologists (ASIS).

In addition to my psychotherapy qualifications, I am a qualified Sexual Grounding Therapist and hold a First Class Honours degree in neuroscience and a master's in health psychology.

About Elena Løvendal-Duffell

Helena: I have been in private practice in London since 1988. I was a faculty member at The Institute of Psychosynthesis in London, before co-founding The Centre For Gender Psychology in 1996 and Creative Couple Work in 2000, offering specialist, post-graduate diploma training in Relationship Therapy & Coaching. I am co-founder of the UK Centre for Psychosexual Therapy .

I offer psychotherapy, coaching and workshops for individuals and couples, as well as specialist training and supervision for professionals in the field of relationships, sex and gender relations in UK, Europe, and Scandinavia. I originated the “Ways of Woman” program (1993), and was amongst the first qualified Sexual Grounding Therapists®, I am an SGT Senior Trainer and was appointed Head of Education SGT International in May 2013.

Event Details

This webinar will focus on:

A new, client and practitioner friendly, version of the classic Freudian Oedipal Triangle as an embodied cognition of love and the sexual energy.

An exploration of what children need from their parents in order to create and maintain fulfilling sexual relationships.

How practitioners can assist in repairing the lack of “Sexual Mirroring” our culture at large suffers from.

An exploration of the kinds of problems, which emerge in adult relationships, which have more to do with parents than partners.

Workshop

Beyond Oedipus

A new approach to working with psychosexual & relational issues in everyday practice.

Saturday 8th April 2017,
