About Mike Trier

I have worked for many years counselling teenagers.

Now, I have a private practice in Sheffield, mainly counselling couples as a Relate Licensed Counsellor, but I also counsel individuals; I am a supervisor, and I offer training, both to young people and adults.

I am BACP Accredited, and achieved both my Person Centred Diploma in Counselling, and my Person Centred Certificate in Supervision at Temenos, in Sheffield.

Event Details

We will be exploring what impacts the new BACP Ethical Framework is likely to have on supervision.

The new ethical framework embodies a lot of the previous framework, but with different emphases and some new sections. One of these is on supervision, and within this section, Section 59 says: The application of this Ethical Framework to the work with clients will be reviewed in supervision regularly and not less than once a year

I wonder how many supervisors are happy with this: does it fit their current ways of operating and how could it be done in practice?

Our exploration will broadly fit into three sections:

1. Familiarising ourselves with aspects of the new framework which particularly relate to supervision
2. Discussing possible strategies for using the framework with supervisees
3. Exploring some ethical dilemmas using the framework
