FACILITATING GROUPS: QUESTIONS & REFLECTIONS DOT CLARK, COLIN LAGO, & JOHN WILSON

Resource Guide

About Dot Clark

While on a long-term retreat 2008-9, I experienced a profound connection between mystical explorations of the unity of being and the fundamentals of the person-centered approach (PCA).

Both traditions call for a particular quality of attention to be paid to whatever is happening in the relationship, with Other people and with Being itself. The territory discussed in my chapter was part of the exploration I undertook into the meaning of this experience while a student at the University of Edinburgh.Add a little bit of body text

About Colin Lago

Colin Lago was Director of the Counselling Service at the University of Sheffield, U.K. from 1987 – 2003.

He now works as an independent counselor, trainer, supervisor, and consultant and visiting lecturer to the Universities of East Anglia and Strathclyde.

Trained initially as an engineer, Colin went on to become a full-time youth worker in London and then a teacher in Jamaica. Colin was profoundly influenced by the writings of Carl Rogers long before he trained as a counselor.

Deeply committed to "transcultural concerns" he has had articles, videos, and books published on the subject.

He has recently been awarded a D.Litt for his contributions to the literature on multicultural therapy.Add a little bit of body text

About John Wilson

I am a trainer in the Person Centred field and have brought this experience to Temenos, contributing to various year groups including Diploma and MSc cohorts. I am currently working with the Temenos Diploma group.

My specialism is online counseling which has developed into offering online CPD for Partitioners via Onlinevents. This online environment has seen the growth and development of online group experience through the use of an unstructured chat room environment.
