About Philippa Weitz

I am interested in the success of the online therapeutic relationship, security, confidentiality, & jurisdiction as well as the use of virtual reality and artificial intelligence in therapeutic settings.

Most of all, I want to inspire therapists to simply go beyond turning on their webcams and thinking that is online therapy. There is such an exciting world out there for the online therapist as big as the capacity of our mind to explore beyond what we are comfortable with.

So, what are my formal roles?

- Training Director for the Academy for Online Counselling & Psychotherapy,
- Psychotherapy Director at Dr Julian,
- Vice Chair and R & D Director for the Association for Counselling & Therapy Online,
- and author/editor of Psychotherapy 2.0: Where Psychotherapy and Technology Meet and series editor for the Psychotherapy 2.0 series including Online Supervision edited by Anne Stokes.

Event Details

Providing the evidence for the efficacy on online therapy through the use of CORE-Net: safeguarding, client satisfaction and making online therapists more employable.

The Association for Counselling & Therapy Online (ACTO) launches its latest membership benefit: CORE-Net.

ACTO believes the purchase of CORE-Net as a membership benefit for members is going to be the most amazing tool for our members, and ultimately for the care of our clients. It will also provide us with the evidence-base that we need in order to be commissioned by NHS services and elsewhere. Many of you will have used CORE, and seen filing cabinets full of CORE scores. Being online therapists, we have an enormous benefit: we can use CORE-Net – a digital tool completed by clients on line and 100% managed online. This gives an opportunity to track risk and safeguarding as well as providing clients with information about how they are doing.... And our pilot shows that clients really appreciated this.
