About Blake Griffin Edwards

I am a systemic-minded, person-centred psychotherapist, behavioural health administrator and consultant, health care governing board member, and writer. More importantly, I am a husband and father. I live in north central Washington State in the U.S.A.

When I think of re-visioning person-centred therapy, I think of the unique challenges of maintaining the integrity of the radical therapeutic ethic that a person-centred orientation requires in the midst of the ever changing landscape of managed care in the 21st century. It is here that we encounter great difficulties but also great opportunities.

By exploring various ways to assimilate recent progressive developments and to renew its vital links with its radical roots, Re-Visioning Person-Centred Therapy: Theory and Practice of a Radical Paradigm takes a fresh look at this revolutionary therapeutic approach.

Bringing together leading figures in PCT and new writers from around the world, the essays in this book create fertile links with phenomenology, meditation and spirituality, critical theory, contemporary thought and culture, and philosophy of science. In doing so, they create an outline that renews and re-visions person-centred therapy's radical paradigm, providing fertile material in both theory and practice.

Shot through with clinical studies, vignettes and in-depth discussions on aspects of theory, Re-Visioning Person-Centred Therapy will be stimulating reading for therapists in training and practice, as well as those interested in the development of PCT.
