About Rose Cameron

I have been in practice since the late 1980s. I aim to help individuals and couples work through whatever is hindering them in dealing with things as well as what they would like to, and am particularly interested in how gesture, posture, and breath express – and create - psychological and relational difficulties.

I work differently with each person, and if you decide to work with me you are very welcome to ask me questions about our work and how I anticipate it being helpful.
